

President Points Way For Congress On Home Front

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—President Truman told Congress today the way to keep America prosperous in 1947 is to leave taxes alone, raise minimum wages, increase social security benefits, broaden coverage of the wage-hour law and maintain rent controls.

It would be "unsound fiscal policy" to cut wartime income taxes, the Chief Executive declared in his first annual economic report to the legislative branch.

The main approach to balancing "real purchasing power" with productive capacity, he said, "must be through reduced prices."

"Rule of Sound Finance"

Taxes should be kept at present levels, Mr. Truman asserted, because of "the rule of sound public finance that calls for surplus in government revenues over expenditures while employment is high and the total income is large."

He conceded the tax burden is great and should be lightened "as soon as possible," but he cautioned: "When reductions come, it will be important that they be fairly and equitably distributed, that they contribute to the maintenance of purchasing power by reducing the burden on the mass of consumers, and that they help provide the work and business incentives essential for a high level of production."

Cheerful Note

The President's lengthy report, based on studies by his new economic council, began on this cheerful note:

"As the year 1947 opens America has never been so strong or so prosperous. Nor have our prospects ever been brighter."

Mr. Truman said he and the American people reject "the notion we must have another depression."

In addition to immediate action toward raising minimum wages, the President said, Congress should adopt a long-range housing program, encourage construction of a million homes in the next 12 months and adjust public assistance, old age and survivors insurance benefits under the Social Security Act to meet cost of living increases. Mr. Truman mentioned no specific figures in his minimum wage and social security recommendations.

Long Range Program

Congress set up the President's economic advisory council and specified yearly reports when it passed the Employment Act of 1946 last summer.

For a long-range program, the Chief Executive suggested:

1. Enactment of legislation to prevent discrimination against racial and other minority groups and to bring about efficient coordination of the employment services of the 48 states.

Mr. Truman asked the last Congress in vain to establish a permanent fair employment practice commission charged with preventing employment discriminations against minorities.

Encourage Free Enterprise

2. Production incentives for business to expand, thus providing employment and maintaining maximum consumption of agricultural products.

He recommended greater flexibility in the government's farm price support program to avoid the danger of keeping the level "too high."

3. Encouragement of "free enterprise" by (a) amendment of the anti-trust laws to prohibit mergers through acquisition of assets or stock control, and (b) easier long-term credit to "small and promising business enterprises."

Deals With Trade Barriers

4. Adjustment of federal retirement and pension systems to "the size and composition of our labor force," increased social security benefits and expansion of peace-time programs of "public health, nutrition and education."

5. Reciprocal reduction of trade barriers. Mr. Truman cited progress in the formation of an international trade organization as "the most important step that we can take to re-establish a high volume of trade on a sound basis."

6. A well-integrated program of employment stabilization, "improvements in the processes by which workers find jobs and employers find workers; improvements in the tax structure; wise management of the public debt and a flexible credit policy."

RED CROSS IS HELPING VETS ON INSURANCE

The Adams county Red Cross today urged all veterans of World War II who have allowed their GI insurance to lapse to come to its office on Baltimore street and fill out forms reinstating their insurance prior to February 1.

This month, Mrs. Milton Remmel, Home Service chairman for the county chapter pointed out today, marks the last period in which servicemen and veterans may reinstate their term insurance without undergoing a health examination.

So far about 50 veterans have applied to the Red Cross office for assistance in reinstating their insurance and county officials believe that hundreds of other veterans in the county may wish to be reinstated prior to the February 1 deadline.

"Best Available"

Although no health examination is needed, veterans must sign a statement that they are in "as good health as at the time the policy lapsed," Mrs. Remmel said. She also underscored that regardless of the period of the policy's lapse, only two months' premiums will have to be paid. She added that terminal leave bonds can be assigned to meet the two premium payments.

Pointing out that the GI insurance is the best that can be obtained and has higher return value than any commercial insurance, Mrs. Remmel added that "average monthly payment for the beneficiaries is $50 with 75 per cent receiving payments for the rest of their lives."

Not only can the Red Cross aid those seeking to reinstate their GI insurance, Mrs. Remmel said, but all types of assistance can be given. The services of the chapter include counseling as to type of insurance available, conversion of policies to six types of policy, and referring veterans to qualified specialists for advice on insurance problems. Forms available through the Red Cross include conversion forms, beneficiary change forms, reinstatement forms, and applications for burial claims and markers.

GULDEN HEADS SPORTS GROUP

Charles Gulden, Aspers, was elected president of the Fish and Game Association of the upper Adams county community Tuesday evening at an organization meeting held in the Bendersville community hall. Maurice E. Dugan, Bendersville was named vice president; Wilson Wenk, Wenksville, secretary and Dale Crum, Bendersville, treasurer.

Thirty-three sportsmen, mostly from the Bendersville, Aspers, Wenksville sections of the county were present for the initial meeting at which the group laid plans to seek additional members and continue their organization.

Next Thursday, January 16, was set as the date for the next session with the group planning to invite Game Protector Leo Bushman, and executives of other sportsmen's organizations in the county as speakers.

Adoption of a constitution and by-laws is also scheduled for the January 16 meeting.

"While we are still 'feeling our way' in the organization at the present time," an officer of the newly created group said today, "we hope to learn from other sportsmen's groups just how they have gone about their organization and we hope in the near future to be able to present interesting programs for our members and to carry out a program of placing game and fish in the upper county section."

Guilty Of Assault On Former Countian

Stewart Burnell Wallet, Hanover, who was found guilty by a jury on October 31 of charges of assault and battery with intent to kill and carrying concealed a deadly weapon, was sentenced by Judge Walter I. Anderson in York court Tuesday to spend not less than two and a half nor more than five years in the Eastern Penitentiary. Sentence was delayed Tuesday by a motion for a new trial, which was withdrawn by his counsel, Attorney Judson E. Ruch.

Last February 23, Wallet met his wife, formerly of New Oxford, on a Hanover street, drew a pistol and shot her. Her wound, while severe, was not dangerous. In passing sentence Judge Anderson told Wallet that he is fortunate that assault on his wife did not result in her death or in the death of some one else from wild shots fired at the time. The judge took into consideration a recommendation of the jury for mercy, the fact that he had no previous criminal record and that the wife in a measure contributed to the situation that brought about the shooting.

Sums Left In Trust To Orphanage, Church

The Hoffman orphanage and the Benders Evangelical and Reformed church, Biglerville, are among the beneficiaries under the will of the late John J. Rex, Aspers, who died in the Warner hospital here December 29 as the result of injuries received when he was struck by an automobile.

The will, filed for probate in the office of the register and recorder Tuesday, names the widow, Mrs. Mary A. Rex, Aspers, as executrix, and makes an outright cash bequest of $5,000 to her. A trust fund of $500 is to be created, the income to be paid to the orphanage, and a $300 trust fund is left to help pay the salary of the pastor of the Benders church. Residue of the estate is left to the widow.

Letters of administration have been issued to Mrs. Helen P. Brendle, Littlestown, on the estate of her husband, J. Walter Brendle, who died January 6. Besides the widow, three daughters, Mary Ruggles, Littlestown, and Dorothy Trostle, and Jean Brendle of York survive. The estate is listed as $6,000 personal property and $9,000 real estate.

Marshall Succeeds Byrnes

Gen. George C. Marshall (left) and James F. Byrnes walk in Washington last March 15 after the Army veteran returned from Chungking to report to President Truman. Truman announced in Washington that Byrnes had resigned as secretary of state and Gen. Marshall, now en route to Washington from China, would succeed him.

Marshall Follows Byrnes As Secretary Of State

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—The Senate Relations committee today unanimously approved President Truman's nomination of Gen. George C. Marshall to succeed James F. Byrnes as secretary of state.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—James F. Byrnes' resignation as secretary of state was announced suddenly last night and Five-Star General George C. Marshall was designated as his successor.

It had been known that Byrnes' health was not too good, but the White House disclosure that he was leaving the cabinet came with so little advance talk that it was a shock to many officials concerned with foreign affairs.

Byrnes asked that the resignation be effective Friday, but agreed to continue in the post until his successor qualified.

Marshall, who has been Mr. Truman's special envoy to China, is on his way here by air. His selection must be approved by the Senate before he can take office.

No break or shift in foreign policy is expected from the change.

Both diplomatic and congressional leaders agreed that Marshall will "carry on" with the task of constructing world peace where Byrnes leaves off.

Hence capital interest in his future policies was equalled if not exceeded by the fact that as secretary of state the five-star general will become first in line for succession to the presidency and—whether he

Outlook For 1947

Victor Products Officials See Production And Sales Records For Industry In '47

The rubber heel industry, in common with many other of the nation's leading industries, will continue to set records in production and sales during 1947 in the opinion of Roy P. Funkhouser, president and general manager of the Victor Products Corporation of Pennsylvania, whose plant here is located on North Washington street.

"I believe that the industry's sales in 1947 will hold to the record levels of 1946, and I do not look for an appreciable drop in volume before 1949," Mr. Funkhouser said.

Business all along the line was extremely good during 1946, Mr. Funkhouser said, and these high levels of production and sales in most major lines will be maintained and in many cases surpassed this year, he thinks.

"Stock piles and reserves are extremely low, or simply do not exist at all, and there is and has been a pent-up demand for many lines of goods that cannot be met for some

EX-DETECTIVE IS POLICE CHIEF AT NEW OXFORD

A retired detective sergeant from Washington, D. C., who found that "there's still a little police work left in me" after being retired for eight years, has joined the ranks of Adams county police chiefs.

The new officer, Earl Lester McNale, who was sworn into office Tuesday, is the first chief of police to be named in New Oxford, fourth largest borough in the county.

A native of Pennsylvania and a native of the same section of the state that produced Gettysburg's chief of police, Robert C. Harpster, Chief McNale began his career in police work as a plainclothesman for the Reedsville electric railroad during World War I. Later he went to Washington, D. C., where for 23 years he served as a member of the police force.

Worked With Juveniles

A detective there, he became interested in youngsters and the problem of juvenile delinquency with which he worked for some time. As a result of that training one of the first things he plans to do as chief in New Oxford is to establish a school boy safety patrol, he told a reporter for The Gettysburg Times today. Schoolboy patrols fill many needs he said, serving the students and public by protecting the youngsters from danger of accidents, and serving the members themselves as a training for future citizenship and serving as an organization which will provide recreation as well as training.

In 1938 two criminals, attempting to escape, shot and beat up then Detective Sergeant McNale. For four days he was near death. When he recovered sufficiently to be about he realized that it would be years before he would be well enough to be a policeman again and retired.

Unable to find a home in his native state, he lived in Virginia for awhile, finally moving to New Oxford R. 2 about six months ago when he bought a home there.

Elected Monday

New Oxford borough officials sought out the retired policeman and as a result Monday evening the town council appointed him chief and the burgess swore in the new officer Tuesday morning.

In the near future the borough plans to establish a central headquarters for the officer on or near the square in New Oxford.

Meantime in setting up his work in Pennsylvania the new chief has been aided by Chief Harpster at Gettysburg. The two have been friends over a period of years.

Little, Hanover, will make the Silver Beaver awards and the statuette will be presented by Marion Hagerman, assistant senior leader, Explorer post 55, assisted by Benjamin T. Root, council commissioner. Similar statuette will be awarded to one leader chosen for outstanding work in each of the seven other districts in the area, it was announced.

Tickets Sell Well For 'Hans Brinker'

Ticket sales for the Clare Tree Major production of "Hans Brinker and the Silver Skates" to be given Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Majestic theatre are going well in the Gettysburg schools, reports showed today, and requests for tickets already have been received from a number of schools in the county.

FRUITMEN TO PREPARE APPLE DISPLAY FRIDAY

The committee of the Adams county Fruit Growers' Association named to arrange for the annual apple display to be placed at the State Farm Show at Harrisburg by the county fruit growers will meet Friday morning at 9 o'clock at the Biglerville cold storage plant to arrange the 15 bushel display.

But the display is not expected this year to be up to the standards of a few years ago when the county year after year, walked off with the honors in the annual apple display contest, Harry S. Stoner, Orrtanna R. D., chairman of the committee, said today. The early picking season last year caused most apples to be taken from the trees before they reached the mature finish needed for a top-notch display, Stoner said, and as a result the county growers do not expect to do so well this year.

However, Stoner added, he "understands other counties had the same conditions and comparatively speaking Adams county may do all right."

From the fruit brought to the Biglerville cold storage plant Friday morning by members of the committee and other fruit growers, the committee will pick the best possible entries for the display. Present plans call for members of the committee to pick up the display of apples on Sunday and take it to Harrisburg to the farm show buildings. There the display is to be placed in the large entranceway to the building.

The last such display sent by the county was in 1941. After that such activities in connection with the farm show week were cancelled by the war.

Good Evening
The Historical Society has made the first move for a Sesqui-Centennial celebration for Adams county in 1950.

W. W. EISENHART NEW PRESIDENT OF HISTORIANS

W. W. Eisenhart, Abbottstown, retired superintendent of schools of Tyrone, Pa., and immediate past president of the Hanover Kiwanis club, was elected president of the Adams County Historical society at its first 1947 meeting Tuesday evening at the court house. Mr. Eisenhart succeeds Dr. Henry Stewart, who ended two years as president of the society.

At the same session the society authorized the appointment of a committee to cooperate in the planning of the celebration of Adams county's sesquicentennial in 1950. The same committee also might be asked to produce a county history in connection with the celebration.

In another society action, the organization's facilities were offered to the Adams county School Directors' association and its recently-named committee charged with compiling a history of Adams county schools. The society also agreed to name a committee to consult with the schoolmen in the development of the history.

History of Littlestown

P. Emory Weaver, Littlestown, was the speaker of the evening and presented a paper on the history of Littlestown, oldest town in Adams county.

Dr. Stewart presided during the early part of the evening but later turned the gavel over to the new president. The other officers, all elected without contests, are: vice president, Mrs. E. S. Lewars; secretary, J. M. Sheads; treasurer, Harry T. Stauffer; librarian, Mrs. Victor Dutera; and directors for two years, Mrs. William Arch McClean, Dr. Frederick Tilberg, Dr. Stewart, F. Mark Bream and Miss Margaret McMillian.

The appointment of the sesqui-centennial and the school history committees will be made later. Philip Wagaman, Mt. Pleasant school director and member of the society, asked the group's help for his committee in compiling the school history. The work is being undertaken now, he said, because of the rapid disappearance of the one-room country schools.

STATE HEALTH OFFICER GIVES REPORT FOR '46

Adams county is becoming each year a more healthful place in which to live.

At least that is the impression given by the report of the State Sanitarian for Adams County, William I. Shields, for the year 1946, released today.

During the last year, only 29 homes were placarded for contagious diseases as compared with 34 in 1945 and 74 in 1944.

Scarlet fever, which was the most prevalent disease, occurred in only 24 homes during 1946 as compared with 27 in 1945 and 60 in 1944. There were only two cases of anterior poliomyelitis as compared with four the previous year and three the year before that.

One Meningitis Case

One meningitis case was reported, the same number as in 1945. In 1944 there were five cases. The 37 cases of chicken pox was less than the 76 in 1944 and more than the seven in 1945. There were four cases of undulant fever as compared with five (Please Turn to Page 2)

BULLETINS

Weehawken, N. J., Jan. 8 (AP) — A wind-fanned fire, which sent great billows of smoke over the Hudson river waterfront opposite midtown Manhattan, razed a freight-laden export pier of the New York Central railroad to the water level and badly damaged another today.

A railroad spokesman said the loss would reach at least $6,000,000. Five railroad employees were injured in the spectacular general-alarm fire.

New York, Jan. 8 (AP) — The defense, without calling a witness, rested today in the trial of Alvin J. Paris, charged with attempting to "fix" the December 15 championship professional football game between the New York Giants and Chicago Bears.

New York, Jan. 8 (AP) — Pivotal steels and motors led a moderate improvement in today's stock market after early indecision. A number of issues failed to participate in the advance. Activity on the turn broke a lull after a fairly fast opening. Gains of fractions to more than a point were scattered among the leaders near the fourth hour.

TIMES PATRONS
GENEROUS WITH CARRIERS' GIFTS

Santa Claus—in the person of the patrons of The Gettysburg Times—was very good to the Gettysburg carrier boys over the Christmas holiday, a checkup showed today.

The nine town carriers received over $110 in cash, stockings, candy and innumerable other gifts from the people to whom they daily deliver copies of The Times. Similarly considerable amounts were believed to have been given by their customers to Times carriers in other communities of the county, although no check was made on carriers other than those in the borough here.

Donald Cook, one of the "assistant" carriers is proudest of a football, given him by the Hoffman and Utz barber shop in the square, although he confesses the box of cookies, the box of candy and other gifts he received including $6 in cash were very nice too.

Yvonne Thompson, who carries 197 papers on one route in the town received $18 in cash, candy, oranges and similar gifts. Darrell Thomas was presented with $12.60 in cash, two pair of stockings and "a lot of candy and oranges."

Leon Dillman, who received $17 "and a lot of candy, some home-made," put some of the money given him into the bank and spent some towards the purchase of a bicycle.

Jacky Miller was the recipient of $13.50 and candy while Albert Mumpert reported he was given $11 in cash, a box of candy and "lots of cookies." Fred Oyler, who delivers 187 papers, got $3 in cash, a handkerchief and other gifts.

Robert Dillman with 138 papers received $22.50 in cash, a pair of gloves, candy, cookies and chewing gum. One carrier who has resigned since Christmas was said by other carriers to have been given about $11 and other gifts.

'Boy Friend' Held
In Divorcee's Death

Pottstown, Pa., Jan. 8 (AP)—A 37-year-old divorcee, described by District Attorney Frederick B. Smilie as the "boy friend" of the late Mrs. Miriam Green, was held without bail today charged with her murder.

Smilie said the man, Gerald C. Wentzel, has been under police surveillance since the 28-year-old divorcee was found strangled in her bedroom last December 9.

Painstaking work by the FBI in analyzing evidence enabled Montgomery county police to make the arrest yesterday, Smilie said.

Wentzel, who is married, is being held for action by the county grand jury. W. H. Rosenberry, Jr., counsel for Wentzel, announced he would file a writ of habeas corpus seeking release of the accused man. Wentzel showed no emotion at the brief arraignment. Outside in the corridor his wife, Evelyn, 33, sat on a chair crying softly into a handkerchief.

DEMOCRATS LET LOOSE BLAST AT
NEXT GOVERNOR

By LEONARD A. UNGER

Harrisburg, Jan. 8 (AP)—Democrats let loose a blast of criticism today at the old and new GOP state administrations even before Governor-elect James H. Duff could submit a proposed program to the Republican-dominated 1947 Legislature.

Confining its attack principally to Republican fiscal policies, a statement by the Democratic Legislative caucus said the new General Assembly is faced by "a financial situation that is clouded by deception and deceit."

The statement, issued to newsmen just after the 137th regular session opened yesterday, was not read, however, from the floor of either the House or Senate. Democratic floor leaders—Rep. H. G. Andrews (Cambria) and Sen. John H. Dent (Westmoreland)—joined in condemning messages to the Assembly by Martin and his successor, Gov. John C. Bell, Jr.

Opinions Differ
"The senator (Martin) says taxes have been lowered to help business," Andrews told a reporter. "The governor-elect says that his party's commitments will make an increase in taxes necessary. The senator's intimation would be that the governor-elect's tax program would be a business wrecking affair."

Dent described both messages as "words, words, more words. It was nothing but a rehash of campaign speeches and again we are confronted with that elusive surplus."

He referred to Martin's statement that a deficit of eight years ago was turned into a cash balance of $170,000,000 on May 31, 1945.

On the other hand, Sen. Weldon B. Heyburn (Delaware), Republican president pro tempore of the Senate, described Martin's message as "splendid and inspiring."

Harrisburg Man
Heads Cancer Drive

Walter E. Burns, also of Harrisburg, was named state campaign director for the drive which is to be held during April.

The Pennsylvania divisions' quota of the $12,000,000 nationwide goal is $600,000.

Dr. Zoe Allison Johnston, of Pittsburgh, the society's state president, said if county quotas throughout the state are met, the Pennsylvania drive should reach close to $1,000,000, the state divisions 1947 budgetary need.

He added that the money will be used for a three-pronged attack on cancer through education, service and research.

The four-game losing streak of the Gettysburg high school cagers came to an abrupt end Tuesday evening when the Maroons opened their South Penn league schedule successfully by drubbing Mechanicsburg on the local boards 39-25.

After spotting the Wildcats a 9-6 lead in the first period, the Forney-men rallied to take the lead in the second period and won going away in the final frames.

Bill Eisenhart, who entered the game in the second period, provided the spark to get the local cagers going, dropping three goals through in that period and adding one each in the last two frames.

Joe Hess, who played a fine game under the boards, capped the scoring honors with 11 points. Westerdahl, Cole, Fair and F. Rodgers played nice all-around games.

Wildcats Lead
Mechanicsburg got off to a fast start on a side shot by Sultzberger after a minute of play. After another minute Hess netted a foul.

Sheeley connected on a close shot and Westerdahl landed a long chuck. Hess looped a short throw to send the Maroons ahead 5-4 after six minutes but Sheeley rang the bell with a long toss and Sultzberger netted a foul to again give the Wildcats the lead. Cole sank a free toss and Walters looped a one-hander to give the visitors a 9-6 advantage as the period ended.

A goal by Bowersox early in the second period gave the Mechanicsburg team its biggest lead. Hess landed a long throw before Sheeley netted a foul. From then on the Maroons took control. Eisenhart landed three goals while Cole netted a pair and Fair added another. Just as the half-time whistle sounded Walters' long toss dropped through to cut the Maroons' margin to 20-17.

Coach Forney's outfit took complete control in the third period and limited their foes to but three free throws in the third frame while hiking their lead to 32-20.

Jayvees Bow
Reserve players from each bench streamed into action in the final period.

The Maroon Jayvees lost a weird 26-21 game to Mechanicsburg in the preliminary. After Mechanicsburg took an 11-3 lead in the first period, Coach Shoemaker's lads surged back to gain a 14-11 advantage at half time but the visitors spurred in the final periods to clinch the verdict.

On Friday the Maroons will journey to Hershey to meet the Trojans in another loop encounter.

TRIPPI OFFERED $75,000 A YEAR

Miami, Fla., Jan. 8 (AP)—The great All-American halfback, Charley Trippi of the University of Georgia, stands to make $75,000 this year playing pro sports, says President Charley Bidwell of the Chicago Cardinals. That was Bidwell's estimate yesterday after placing Trippi on a plane bound for Athens, Ga.

Trippi spent three days here talking pro football and resting after a tough season. The outstanding Georgia player was drafted by the Cardinals and the New York Yankees of the rival All-American conference and a scramble for his valuable services appears likely.

Bidwell said the ex-G.I. player from Pittsford, Pa., wanted time to consider the bids from the Yankees and the Cards.

"He's a cinch to get $50,000 to put his signature on the dotted line, plus another $15,000 for the season's football play and probably $10,000 from playing baseball," Bidwell said. "I think he's going into sports professionally. He's a fine baseball prospect."

Villanova Beats Princeton Again

(By The Associated Press)
Although playing without a number of key men because of injuries, the American Hockey League Champion Buffalo Bisons are continuing their rapid march up the western division standings.

The Bisons, who got off to a poor start in defense of their crown, have now won seven games and tied one in their last nine starts and have advanced from fourth place to within a point of the runner-up Indianapolis Capitals.

The Bisons, however, were strengthened somewhat over the past week-end when forwards Jimmy McFadden and Les Hickey joined the club from the Ottawa amateurs of the Quebec league.

Last night, the duo played an important part as the Bisons came from behind to nip the St. Louis Flyers, 5-4 in the loop's only game.

Philadelphia, Jan. 8 (AP)—The Philadelphia Lawn Tennis association was on record today with a strong bid to host the 1947 Davis Cup challenge round.

In a resolution passed last night at the group's 32nd annual meeting, Philadelphia delegates voted to submit its bid for the Davis cup tests Saturday at the Middle States Tennis association meeting here. The district body will be instructed to present Philadelphia's bid at the United States Lawn Tennis convocation January 18 at New York.

Death Claims Samuel D. Reck:

Today's Talk

HEROISM OF THE EVERYDAY

I would not like to live in any Utopia. It would be too dull, too uninspiring, too devoid of incentive, too enveloped in selfish ease. We live in a natural world where there are strife, struggle, sorrow, disappointment, and hope. From these is heroism created.

In our cities, parks, and prominent public buildings are displayed the evidences of heroism on the battlefield and from the high places of public service, but rarely are the endless examples of heroism in the everyday emphasized.

From my office window I view men upon steel girders, far above the street, performing dangerous tasks, many a life being sacrificed thus—but the big job goes on. There are replacements. The hero dies, "unheralded and unsung."

Men daily go into the bowels of the earth to dig for coal. Few ever know much of "the color of the sky." Often that mine becomes their grave, with no marked stone above to proclaim their heroism and sacrifice.

In great areas of the earth peasants and coolies bear the burden of cities upon their backs, and in our great cities, at midnight, and beyond, women sweep and scrub floors—mothers, mindful of others to whom they would bring joy and comfort. They are the silent hero! Shut-ins, soldiers returned from the wars, their bodies disabled, bruised, broken, and their minds disillusioned—no greater examples of heroism in this world than exemplified by them. Life goes on for them, in heroic fashion, many of them led only by a remembered smile, or by some forgotten deed of kindness.

There are spiritual revelations in prisons and sickrooms about which the outer world knows nothing. Said William James: "What excites and interests the looker-on at life, what the romances and the statues celebrate, and the grim civic monuments remind us of, is the everlasting battle of the powers of light with those of darkness; with heroism, reduced to its bare chance, yet ever and anon snatching victory from the jaws of death."

Heroism is in the heart. Said Sir Richard Burton—"From none but self expect applause." There is the hidden heroism—the heroism of the everyday!

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk in the subject: "Great Art—Free!"

NO BUSINESS MAN
They told me business is business, and clever a man must be To buy and to sell at a profit. But something is wrong with me. For the ways of the market fright me; too eager am I to buy; And the seller's side of the counter I've never had wish to try.

I never could haggle and dicker, as business so often requires. I haven't the knack of the salesman; my patience too suddenly tires. I buy at the first price mentioned; then flee from the crowded store. Glad to possess what I needed and be out in the air once more.

I envy the buyers and sellers their skill in the marts of trade. For buying and selling must follow as soon as the things are made. But I never could balance a ledger or follow a chart or a plan; And I am the son of a father who had hoped for a business man.

Says Pittsburgh To Have Best Year

Coming here to address Tri-state bankers, Dr. Edie said the volume of durable goods produced this year probably will be twice as great as production of the boom year of 1936, and that production of non-durable items would be up 50 per cent, as compared with that year.

Dr. Edie said he based his prediction on the expectation that far fewer man-hours will be lost in labor disputes than in 1947. He said he had taken into consideration the probability of a temporary recession about the end of the year.

Tired, "All-In"—Listless Feeling Brought To Halt

As Vibrant Energy is Released To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell

Do you get up in the mornings still tired, feel down-and-out all day? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Overwork, undue worry, cold, flu or other illness often wears down the red-blood-cells.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloating and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh all out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

greater degree of prosperity than that which was experienced here and throughout the United States during the year just ended.

"Business has been very good for the past four or five years, and I think we can expect it to continue to be good for at least the next five years," said Mr. Hoffman, who is also president of the borough council.

Mr. Hoffman based a part of his prediction on inventories, which he said are low in almost every line, but particularly in clothing, building materials and other essentials.

Some Prices May Drop
"The people have the money, and they have been waiting a long time for many things," Hoffman declared. "This is true in the construction line and in many other items. They want to build homes, and will as soon as building materials are readily available."

While Mr. Hoffman thinks there will be a buying spree sometime during the coming year, he envisions a continuance of present price levels in many lines, although he says that some items may be reduced as much as 20 or 25 per cent.

"General price levels will be maintained," Mr. Hoffman gave as his opinion, "and employment will continue at high levels. Construction work alone will give ample employment."

Mr. Hoffman said that the borough of Gettysburg will build a second-unit at its sewage disposal plant as soon as it can get the materials, and he said that other municipalities and states were ready with huge building programs which include public buildings, highways and other public works.

"This is bound to create or continue prosperity," Mr. Hoffman says. "Some prices will be reduced, but there will be no extreme low levels reached, and no depression. We can't help but have prosperity for at least five years, in my opinion," he said.

Labor and capital should get closer together, and Mr. Hoffman does not envision any large strikes. In addition, he thinks that the nation may expect legislation which will give the employer the same legal rights as the wage earner, which he says, should correct many inequitable conditions.

RULING IN LABOR CASE

Philadelphia, Jan. 8 (P)—The Pennsylvania supreme court has ruled that union members who decline employment at open shop plants are not entitled to unemployment compensation benefits.

The supreme court ruling was made in the case of John Seifing, 31-year-old carpenter, who as a member of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America (AFL), refused to accept employment at a non-union shipyard at a pay scale of from $1.01 to $1.20 per hour in February, 1944.

Eileen said, unhappily, "My songs aren't right for a band, I know. But I just can't do any other kind, I guess."

"Why, they liked your songs last night. They kept calling for encores, didn't they?" And then, forgetting his resolve, he said with a rush of feeling, "Don't try to change the lovely thing you are, Eileen."

"Oh—Bert!" Her face lit as though the sun had suddenly come into the room. "I thought you'd changed—were never going to say things like that again."

His hands crashed into a minor chord. He said, looking down and forcing a matter-of-fact tone, "I'm only saying—what I mean, Eileen, is—these aren't your style of songs, at all!"

"I see." Her voice was small and miserable. He whirled off the piano stool abruptly and strode—without his cane—over to the window.

Chapter 7
Mrs. McLane's boarders were lingering over Sunday dinner, quite ago over the boys' orchestral debut at the Rotary club the night before, and their future engagements.

Plump Mrs. Van Buren, who headed the table, said graciously, "It wouldn't surprise me in the least if you all became as famous as Tommy Dorsey someday."

"It might surprise Tommy, though," Bert laughed and, excusing himself, left his brothers to gather the rest of the bouquets. He put on a heavy sweater and went back to the rumpled room in the garage.

In spite of their success, he felt dispirited, as gloomy as the damp, sunless November day. He cleared the table top of magazines and, playing a listless game of solitaire, he thought of Paul and Eileen. A soft knock interrupted his game. He called, "Come in!" and looked up to see Eileen, in a bright plaid raincoat, standing in the doorway with some music in her hand.

"Why, hello!" he said in pleased surprise. "Come in out of the cold." Eileen smiled uncertainly. "I brought over some new songs. I thought maybe we could try them over."

Bert looked at their titles. His eyebrows lifted. "Torch songs? For you?"

"I ought to give people what they like—songs they expect to hear, shouldn't I?" She looked so terribly concerned, Bert had to smile.

"Well, take off your coat and sit down. I'll get Eddy to play for you."

"He just went down the street with Paul, to the picture show. I wanted you to play them, Bert," she said forthrightly, "and give me your opinion. Will you?"

"Why, sure—if you're content with one-hand playing." He folded Eileen's coat and laid it on his own broad comfortable daybed. Already his mood had brightened. He lit the bridge lamp beside the piano and, with his right hand, accompanied her in two obviously unsuitable numbers. She simply couldn't step out of character enough, it seemed, to put them over. She stood there, waiting his approval, but he told her candidly, "These aren't your type, Eileen. You'd better stay with the waltzes and ballads."

Eileen flushed. "I borrowed them this morning from Thelma, because several people requested them last night."

Eileen said, unhappily, "My songs aren't right for a band, I know. But I just can't do any other kind, I guess."

"Why, they liked your songs last night. They kept calling for encores, didn't they?" And then, forgetting his resolve, he said with a rush of feeling, "Don't try to change the lovely thing you are, Eileen."

Chapter 8
Bert's refusal staggered Eileen even more than Mr. Traynor. Playing with a movie orchestra, at union salary, overtime—why, it meant financial security, a chance, perhaps, for them to marry. And Bert had daily turned it down.

Mr. Traynor scowled behind his cigarette. "Building your own band's a terrible headache, fella. And don't let anybody kid you. You'll get places a lot faster in Hollywood, if you join up with a band that's already known, like mine is."

"I know, Mr. Traynor," Bert admitted doggedly. "But I'm going to give it a try, anyway."

"You'll lay awake nights worrying—spend a fortune for advertising—"

Bert was smiling. "Maybe we'll be lucky, Mr. Traynor."

The orchestra leader rose. "Well, anytime you change your mind, young fella, just give me a ring."

Bert and Eileen stood looking at each other. Her cheeks were flushed.

"But, Bert, wasn't that a good opportunity?" she asked, puzzled.

"Sure; wonderful! For a moment it nearly knocked me off my feet." He sank down in the chair Mr. Traynor had vacated. "But I'm in with my brothers and the other fellows now. I couldn't let them down, could I?"

"No, I suppose you couldn't, Bert."

She came over to him and brushed his thick, dark hair off his forehead, and kissed him tenderly. "You're wonderful, Bert. And I'm really happier to know how really wonderful you are than if you had accepted."

"It's you who are the wonderful one, darling." And as his arm encircled her trim little waist, he thought how lucky he was to have found a girl like Eileen, who could understand and back him up so loyally, even though it meant delaying their own happiness.

"I wonder what the boys will think about it?"

"They aren't to know anything about it," he said quickly. "From either of us. If anybody saw Mr. Traynor come in, and asks any questions—he smiled at her conspiratorially—"Well, he was looking for somebody he couldn't find. Okay?"

"Okay, Mister Big-Heart."

He yanked an errant curl, drew her to his feet, and led her back to the piano. "Now, here's a little number you can do beautifully. Nice harmony, too. Come on, let's try it together."

Bert's mother opened the door. She still had on her flowered cotton house dress, but her graying hair was beautifully dressed, as usual.

"Sounds very pretty," she said, beaming approval. "I never knew you could sing like that, Bert. You've been holding out on your family."

Bert took Eileen's hand. "Oh, I'm just blossoming out since Eileen came along. Shall we tell her, honey?" At Eileen's nod, Bert happily announced, "We're going to be married. Mother—just as soon as the Alvarado Merry Makers strike pay dirt."

Mrs. McLane looked at them a moment, fondly. "You couldn't have chosen anyone I'd rather have you marry. Son, or you, either Eileen," she added.

Bert thought gratefully. She didn't have Eileen picked out for Paul, the way he said, then, after all! He said, still holding Eileen's hand, "We wanted you to know, Mom, but let's keep it quiet for a little while, shall we?"

"Of course, if that's the way you want it. I came out to ask you to stay for tea, Eileen. I've baked your favorite cake, dear—it seems, now, for a very special occasion."

And when the five of them sat down to the table in her private sitting room a little later, she said, "Here, Eileen, sit here next to Eileen stood beside him. "What has happened, Bert. What have I done?"

"Is isn't you," he blurted, turning from the hurt look in her eyes. "It's me. I'm not good for you, Eileen—for any girl. We've got to face it, act sensibly. I'm a disabled veteran."

She put her hand upon his arm. "I've loved you from the day your mother showed me your picture, Bert. When you came home and said, 'That night, you liked me, too—Well, it made everything different. Everything! I'm not lonely any more, or restless and discontented. Why, my music teacher says even my singing is different—better.' Her voice, her nearness made a pulse throb in his throat. But he wouldn't let his emotions rule his common sense again. He moved his arm free of her hand. He shut his eyes, his fists—strangling the longing to take her in his arms.

"We're not right for each other," he said, finally. "I—I thought perhaps you understood."

He felt the shock go through her, despised himself for wounding her. "I feel like such a fool," she said in a small, strained voice. "I understand—of course." She turned from him and started toward the door.

He couldn't let her go like that, so hurt, so disillusioned.

"Eileen—dearest!" He caught her shoulder. "It's changed everything for me, too—just knowing you live in the same world."

"Bert—oh, darling!" Joyously, they went into each other's arms. "I may limp all my life, darling. We may never be able to dance together, play tennis—do any of these."

She stopped him with a kiss. "What do any of them matter—if we are together?"

He held her close. "I love you—love you!"

Hurried footsteps on the concrete walk separated them quickly. Someone hammered on the door. Bert opened it to a well-dressed stranger, who said importantly, "I'm Jack Traynor. Had a helluva time finding you, fella." He flopped into an armchair, lit a cigarette, and smiled behind his smoke. "I wasn't too high last night to recognize a first-class player when I hear one."

"You were at the Rotarian dance, then, at the Wilshire Park?"

Traynor laughed tolerantly. "Not me, brother. I was lifting them at the hotel bar, and when I finally navigated to your shindig, everybody had gone home." He handed Bert his card. "I've got a forty-two piece orchestra," he said proudly, "under contract with Monarch Studios. How'd you like to play for me? Union wages—keep you busy most of the time."

Bert studied the card, impressed. "Any night work connected with it?"

"Sure, plenty!" Traynor winked at Eileen. "Right away he looks for overtime."

Bert smiled. "I've just organized my own little band. I'm going to build it up—not break it up! Thanks for the offer, just the same."
